TRAGIC DEATH OF THOMAS DUNN.

Several Liquor Licenses Granted in Danville-A Colored Girl Burned to Death-Virginia Affairs.

DANVILLE, VA., April 29.-[Special.]-In the hustings court to-day a dozen liquor licenses were granted and the court will sit tomorrow to hear applications for others. Mr. N. H. Massie was appointed by the court Commonwealth's attorney to fill the unexpired term of the late Henry E. Barksdale.

Information was received here to-day of the tragic death of Mr. Thomas Dunn, a well-known and very popular young man of Henry county. Mr. Dunn, who lives near Morgan's Ford, was breaking a young horse.

Morgan's Ford, was breaking a young norse.

The animal became unmanageable, ran away and throwing Mr. Dunn from the cart killed him almost instantly by breaking his skull.

From Lawrenceville comes the story of a fatal burning on Wednesday night. Lula Thrower, a colored girl living on the premises of Mr. W. H. Hawings, near Lawrenceville, was asleep near the fire when her clothing caught on fire, and before the flames could be extinguished the girl was so badly burned extinguished the girl was so badly burned that she died in a short while.

that she died in a short while.

The excise board of Danville has been in session daily for several days. So far sixteen applications for liquor licenses have been approved, and quite a number more have been laid over for future consideration. The board having ascertained that it has no jurisdiction in North Danville has dismissed all applications from that town.

A Champion Hawk Fighter.

The Scranton man who writes wonderful stories of anima's to the New York Sun has come forward again with the following stuncome forward again with the following stun-ner: "But the best hawk scarer and fighter we ever had on the farm was a tame crow that we called Nig. Father had taught the crow to fight with the roosters, and he had erow to fight with the roosters, and he had sent to the city and got a pair of steel gaffs for him. Nig was always on the alert for hawks, and if he saw one hovering over the farm buildings he made for it and knocked it about in the air until it steered for the peak, when Nig would come sailing home with a song of triumph. After father had got Nig well trained in the use of the steel spurs he left them on the crow in the day time while the chickens and the turkeys day time while the chickens and the turkeys were small. While the family was at dinner were small. While the family was at dinner one day we heard a terrific screaming out in the meadow. We all rushed out, and there was Nig and a mammoth hawk in a lively conflict. The crow was jabbing his steel spurs into the hawk's head like a game-cock, and he was making it so hot for the hawk that it didn't rise three feat from the stubble before Nig hit it a clip in the head and downed it again. Nig killed the hawk in a short time, and a few days afterward he drove another one into the top of an apple tree and sourced it to death. At an apple tree and sourced it to death. apple tree and spurred it to death. At another time Nig tackled a hawk just after it had caught a chicken, and he used his spurs so scientifically that the hawk quickly tum-bled into a fence corner, where Nig numbed his head full of holes and left it to die. One afternoon a bawk got high up over the barn with a young fowl before Nig caught sight of it. He sailed after it, and the hawk gave a No. He said with the hawk gave a scream and made for the peak in a beeline. Nig headed it off, and he lought it in midair till the hawk was so badly blinded by the spurs that it flew against the barn and was

A Whale-Calmed Sea.

A terrific storm, driving before it a huge sea like a tidal wave, struck the British steamship Dewsland on March 19th in latitude 14.15, longitude 27.20, while bound from Bilbao to Philadelphia, deep laten with Spanish iron ore. The wind blew with great fury from the ore. The wind blew with great fury from the northwest, and a heavy cross sea soon spring up and broke over the vessel from all points of the compass.

An effort was made to run the vessel be-fore the wind, but without success. She would not pay off, owing to the heavy wind and sea, and a luli in the storm wind and sea, and a lull in the storm made it possible to put the vessel's head again to the sea. Still she labored heavily list suddenly the waters subsided almost as quick as they had risen, when what appeared to be a black rock was seen some distance away. As the vessel approached closer it proved to be a dead whale of immense size. The carcass was at least six feet above the surface of the water and covered with countless birds of all sizes and descriptions. A stream of sperm oil was occling out tions. A stream of sperm oil was oczing out upon the sea in all directions from the fatty derelict, which all hands believe had the effect of quelling the heavy sea. The efficacy of oil was first discovered by whalers watching the effect upon the sea near dead whales.

The Puritan fathers who settled in America were greatly addicted to smoking indeed, the practice became so common that even these strait laced observers of time and seasons actually smoked in church. This cus-tom soon caused very considerable annoy-ance, as the religious exercises were greatly disturbed by the clinking of steels and fints

The English Consul at Mozambique, in a recent letter, mentions the existence on the east coast, south of the Zambesi river, of reefs of pearl oysters. The greater part of the reef is within enclosed waters. As it has never been regularly worked, the pearls which could be found there must be of considerable dimensions. The natives occasionally find black pearls of rare beauty, but their value is destroyed by the method employed in extracting them from the shell, which consists in playing the oyster in the fire.

The protection which British juries afford to men who abuse their wives is extraordinary, and this is a striking case. At Leeds a man named Knight, whose wife had deserted him on account of his violence and intemperance, went to see her ito ask her to re-turn home, and because she refused he fired three shots at her, hitting her each time, wounding her in the arm, back and ear. The jury found that the prisoner fired only with the intent to "frighten his wife," and the man had to be discharged.

Frince Bismarck utters sentiments that would be shocking to read now. He insists that the races of Northern Europe need wine or spirits—he prefers old cognac himself—for drink, and in order to learn their own power. Morello Again Wins.

The Washington Post of yesterday says:
The sport began with a two-year-old race, in which the Doswell colt, Morello, and the Burch filly, Rose Washington, met. Each had won a race here, seemed to be the best youngsters shown so far and the meeting of the pair was considered quite an event. owner said his representative was good, and no excuse could be offered for either. The filly opened a strong favorite, and was backed at the ridiculous price of 4 to 5, while the colt was moderately supported at 2 to 1. The others in the race were not considered worth a bet. They got the flag to a nice start, with the colt the quickest to move off. The filly had not gone more than a few yards when she was interiered with a bit and lest a couple of lengths. She soon get clear, but, when coming around, she stumbled. and for an instant seemed to be out of the race. When well in the straight, however, she came with a wet sail, and brought Morello to a drive, he finally winning by a scant half length. The filly was catching him very fast length. The filly was catching him very last at the finish, and it was a great pity she was interfered with. The general opinion is that the colt is the better, and so well do horsemen think of him that there were several offered to buy him at $4,000. Mr. Doswell refused to seil at that price, and says $5,000 is the figure now, and if he keeps him another week it will be $6,000. He is certainly a greater and the transfer with grand colt, and one that will improve with

RICHMOND AND WEST POINT TERMINAL Railway and Warehouse Co.

To the Bondholders of the Richmond and Danville System and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia System:

The plan of reorganization of the Richmond and West Point Terminal Railway and Ware-house Company, dated MARCH 1, 1892, provides for the retirement of your bonds and the issue of certain securities in place thereof. The plan is not coercive. It contemplates the pre-vention of receiverships with consequent bankruptcy and disintegration of the properties. Your co-operation is necessary to preserve the integrity of this large system of railroads, and you are invited to become parties to the plan by depositing your bonds without delay with the Central Trust Company of New York. As recited in the reorgan-ization plan, some of its advantages will ap-pear by comparing the results of the present system of operation and of the one proposed, bearing in mind that the apparent net earnings of the existing properties are not and have not been available to their full extent.
